DEMOCRACY AND REPUBLICANISM

SOME TRENCHANT COMPARISONS.

Extracts From the Speech of Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, in the House of Representatives, April 24, 1880.

The notion that a party is made up like a subscription to a ladies' magazine by sending out a declaration of principles is a mistake of world-wide significance Men associate together because they are progressive, because they are honest because they have purposes connected with the furtherance and improvement of government Other men associate together because they are conservative, because they are opposed to progress, and because they are not on an average sufficiently intelligent

That is the plan on which parties are formed They are not formed to meet future issues The future issues spring up and parties deal with them according to their constitution and their nature

The difference between the Republican party and the Democratic party is founded on this principle All parties act from a common average There is a great deal more of the government of the people in this country than is generally admitted even by ourselves The people express their average intelligence every time they come to the polls, and every party expresses its average intelligence The reason we have been right and they have been wrong has not been that they had not brilliant leaders, it is because the average intelligence with us has been higher than the average of intelligence with them That is the whole secret of it, and it is an open secret to any man who looks at the history of parties for the past few years

These are general principles, let us descend a little to particulars I say that the Democratic party for the last thirty years has not had an honest heart beat north of Mason and Dixon's line I say that they have continually come forward as a party of free presents Why, look at the acts of this Session Only the other day they came before us and delivered this very bill which we are now discussing by a speech presented by the gentleman from Indiana, [Mr Hostetler] which, was to deprive the right of carrying by every individual who had a claim against the Government, including, as was so eloquently said by my friend from New York Mr. Richardson] the very soldier who fought for his country And for a day or two they actually kept up the pretense of passing that! They were beaten and overthrown, yet just think of it—the Democratic party at this moment of all others proclaiming against the use of money in politics! Why, to the very instant of one of their catalepsies to speak in virtue [to Samuel J. Tilden but stand ready before them pointing his finger to the very least of the barrels and straightway these would limp into that old, wizened, decrepit, and partly dried frame a strength and vigor mightier than the might of France, for in that attitude would be the potentiality of swinging the whole Democratic party, North and South by its noblest part, its long, majestic, and prehensile tail! [Laughter] And yet with that picture on the canvas visible to a whole continent, they come forward and pretend to talk about suppressing the use of money in politics!

I was greatly struck by an instance of their pretenses in the elaborate speech which was delivered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr House] He endeavored what I never expected to see dug up in this House—the committee of investigation of frauds in the last Presidential election! Why, there has not been such a resurrection of dead and buried people since Hildebrand saw the multitudes of Peru rise and range themselves on the sea coast line of South America I do not remember the launching of that historic committee Never was there on earth such an awe-inspiring pageant. I was also struck with the coming storm across the leaden sky and flamed Andrew Johnson, red-haired portent, who afterwards proved to be the longest, hair of historic Christendom

Men went about with hushed voices with pering to each other of dreadful possibilities The faces of the Democracy were radiant with a solemn joy Now at last the usurper who had done them so much harm should be hurled from his throne, and Tilden, Samuel J. the wise, the virtuous, the innocent, the reformatory, should stand before the world visibly what he had always been spiritually, "the Lord's anointed" We, for our part, sat here solemnly rounding our backs to meet the coming storm When the Speaker announced the members of the committee on the other side, it became perfectly apparent that the supreme hour of battle had come and the household troops had been ordered up There at the head was a polished and able gentleman, taken some years ago from our ranks, and who had voted with us often enough since to give the people the idea that he was respectable and to be trusted [Laughter]—a gentleman to whose fairness and impartiality in everything except his report I bear cheerful, cordial, and willing witness. Next came my friend from Ohio [Mr McMahon,] keen and subtle, than whom there is no man in five kingdoms abler to dig a pit for a witness and sweetly cover him into it. And there, to give a tone of solidity to it, was my friend from the seventh district of Kentucky [Mr Blackburn,] then as now undulating and undoubting, and consequently unstraining and unflattened [Laughter] Time would fail me to give an Homeric catalogue of all the great souls of heroes who went down to dusty death. [Laughter.] It is enough to say that they were the bright, consummate flower, the cream of, or, to use a metaphor more suitable to the subject, the combined sweetness and strength, the very "rock and rye" of the Democracy. [Laughter.]

I saw that expedition set forth with much boom of cannon and much flow of flags Five months afterward I saw it drift into port dismasted and dismantled. In silence and sadness, the sorrowing survivors on the heel of the division jostled by every job and hustled by ten-dollar claims, disembarked their precious freight in two parcels—a little one containing what they had to say about our alleged frauds, and a big one containing their real ones. What was the reason of this shipwreck of bright and high endeavor? Why between those days had rolled twenty-seven hundred pages of printed testimony. Now I shall not say—yet I am afraid my friend the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Horr] will never forgive me for not saying—I shall not say that such is the nature of printed matter and such the education and of intelligence and of types that it would be impossible to get together twenty seven hundred pages of printed matter without there being a condemnation of Democracy somewhere between its leaves But I do say that the people day by day examined that testimony, and when they got through, all that vast pretense of fraud vanished in to thin air, and the public saw that Rutherford B. Hayes had not played the knave and that Samuel J Tilden had

Time would fail me to enumerate all these matters. I bring these up simply as samples showing what they have done I affirm that they have not throughout all this Congress come forward with a single measure which they believe in. All their noble energies have been spent and exhausted in attempts to catch us in some mousetrap or other, like the bill of the gentleman from Indiana, [Mr Hostetler called democracy. I do not mean to say the difference between their average of intelligence and ours is so very great, but I say that the difference is just enough to make us take right positions on an average and for them to take wrong ones on an average, that is all [Laughter]

With this picture or panorama thus carefully and considerately drawn Mr Chairman, I want to contrast in just one or two words, and then I have done the action of the Republican party of the United States I belong to it, and have always been onged to it, and I beg to say I am proud of the honor I believe in it, I believe in its future, I believe in its past I believe even in its present

When in 1860 we came into power sixteen States of this Union were black with the festering curse of African slavery and over a vast empire beyond the Mississippi the same portentous cloud hung black and lowering, to day in all this Republic there is not one man who is big enough to buy and own another

We found four millions of men slaves and we left them all freemen We found a war just becoming flagrant along a thousand miles of border That war we have brought to a close ably, decisively, we humanely, mercifully In the problems of reconstruction have proved too much for anything but time, that universal solvent nevertheless imparts a history will accord to us that we have given to them the best of honest effort and of patriotic endeavor

The finances of the country entangled and overwhelmed in the confusion of a great war, we have brought out of chaos up to the shining heights of prosperity

I need say no more These and such as these are our arms won in well fought fields These are our monuments, and whether the world be sixty centuries or six thousand old I say that the sun in all his luminous marches from the east has never lighted up blazonry so honorable or inscriptions truer, or more splendidly deserved. [Applause on the Republican side]

NEWS AND OTHER ITEMS

Study both politics and agriculture—but agriculture first.

The beet sugar interest has extended itself to Nova Scotia, which is also becoming noted for its thoroughbred cattle

It is estimated that about one third of the cattle have died in Utah in consequence of the severity of the winter

Here is a text which we quote from the horse, and which we humbly submit as being worthy of the Bible itself When a man dies they who survive him ask what property he has left behind The angels who bend over the dying man ask what good deeds he has sent before him

A Whitesett Indiana, girl made 200 revolutions with a mill shift and escaped without any serious injury True, that is a good many revolutions; but then they do things on such a big scale out West, that one is forced to believe what we are told of that wonderful region

Our Western cities show commendable enterprise, as an evidence of which we may mention that the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce is to have a new building, in the modern Italian style that will cost $300 000, and is expected to surpass any thing of the kind in the country except the St Louis Exchange, which cost $2 000,000 It will have a campanile rising a hundred and sixty feet

A vast sum of money is made in Europe annually by preparing and putting up that delicious little fish the sardine It is not generally realized that the smelt found in such abundance on our coast is a fish almost precisely similar, and to our taste, of a finer flavor If prepared in the same way as the sardine in France and Italy, we have no doubt it would have the preference in a foreign market

There is nothing better for wives and daughters, physically, than to have the care of a garden—a flower pot, if nothing more What is pleasanter than to spend a portion of every day in working among plants, watching their growth, and observing the opening of their flowers from week to week as the season advances? Then how much it adds to the enjoyment to know that your own hands have planted them and have pruned and trained them? This is a pleasure that requires neither great riches nor profound knowledge The advantages which woman personally derives from starting the soil and snuffing the morning air are freshness and beauty of cheek and brightness of eye, cheerfulness of temper, vigor of mind, and purity of heart

Smilax is an exceedingly graceful vine, with glossy, green-ribbed leaves, and is now more extensively used than any other plant for decorating parlors, the hair and for trimming dresses. With a little care, it can be grown successfully as a house plant. The vine does not require the full sun, but will grow well in a partially-shaded situation. It can be trained on a small thread across the window or around the pictures. Grown from both seeds and bulbs. Pot the bulbs as soon as received, watering but little until you see signs of growth. They grow very rapidly, and should always have strings to twine on Give plenty of fresh air, but be careful and not let a direct draught of cold air blow upon the vines, as they are very tender when young. Give them a warm place, and they will amply repay all care

Many years ago I was taken to a very beautiful home in this State to see a relative. He was a handsome man in face and form, had read much, had amassed wealth, and was looked upon as one of the leading men of the place. His house was full of flowers, and his garden of fruits. He was very fond of horses, I judged from his owning several, which were quite the pride of the village. He took me out to see them in their stables. One of them, a pretty, black creature, angered him for a moment, and he kicked her. The leg of the gentle animal quivered, evidently with pain, as the rough boot came against it. I shall never forget how my feeling changed toward him. A man of professed culture to do so rough and coarse a thing. I never visited his house afterward, and never desired to. I preferred to go where people were kind and gentle, and never kicked their horse or their dog. That one brutal act spoiled his manhood.—A. T. Angell.

Augusta, April 23, 1880.

National Republican Convention.

A National Convention of the Republican party will meet at Chicago on Thursday, the 3d day of June next at 12 o'clock noon, for the nomination of candidates to be supported for President and Vice President at the next election. Republicans and all who will co-operate with them in supporting the nominees of the party are invited to choose two delegates from each Congressional District, four at large from each State, five from each Territory and two from the District of Columbia to represent them in the Convention.

J. D. CAMERON,
Chairman National Committee.
JAMES B. KEOGH, Secretary.

THE BREAK IN NEW YORK AND PENNSYLVANIA

INFLUENTIAL DELEGATES DECLARING FOR BLAINE

The most intense excitement was created at third term circles last week by the smashing of the Conkling-Cameron combination slates in New York and Pennsylvania, by the open republican of the unit rule by a number of the most influential delegates in each State. In New York the revolt against Conkling's arbitrary rule was led off by Judge William H Robertson now a State Senator from Westchester and one of the foremost Republicans of the State. Judge Robertson is exceedingly popular in New York, and received a handsome vote for Governor in the State Convention that nominated Cornell. He is a deliberate and judicious man and the fact of his taking so decided a position made a decided public impression. In the Albany Journal of Thursday evening Judge Robertson published the following card

To the Editor of the Albany Journal:

SIR May I avail myself of the columns of the Journal for reply to inquiries of friends from various parts of the State in regard to my course as a delegate to the Chicago Convention? The last Republican National Convention held that where a State Convention had instructed its delegation to vote as a unit, each delegate had the right to vote for his individual preference. With Republicans that decision is final, and the Utica Convention had no power to overrule it. As well might the General Term of the Supreme Court reverse the judgment of the Court of Appeals.

The delegates at large are bound by the instructions of the State Convention. The district delegates are under no such obligation. A district delegate should represent the wishes of the Republicans of his district.

The Republicans of my district with great unanimity prefer James G. Blaine as the Republican candidate for the Presidency and with them in this preference I am in full accord.

On the first roll call at Chicago and on each subsequent one until an election shall be made I shall vote for James G. Blaine.

I shall vote for him because he is the choice of the Republicans of the district which I represent.

I shall vote for him because to-day he is in my judgment the strongest and most popular Republican living, and the equalities will be well for the Convention to consider in making its choice as on the election of its nominee will depend to a great extent the Nation's welfare.

I shall vote for him because if elected he will make a safe and wise ruler. Under his administration all rebellion will end and peace and quiet will respect the Government and the country will enter upon a career of prosperity and greatness hitherto unknown.

Yours truly,
W. H. ROBERTSON.

Following directly upon the Senator Woodin and her prominent Republican District Delegate to Chicago declared in a public speech in the Senate at Albany on Friday that he was opposed to unit rules and that he was unwilling to vote for a third nomination of Gen Grant. Of the XXXIV Congressional District from which he was chosen a delegate, he said

The choice of the district is emphatically James G. Blaine. That choice must be respected by its delegates to Chicago. To do otherwise is unpardonable treachery. He is my choice. With him to lead the column I feel assured of success. He was the choice of the Republican party four years ago. His hold upon the popular heart is in no degree relaxed since then but on the contrary it has become firmer. I believe he will be nominated. Each passing hour developes his growing strength and popularity. It exhibits itself in States and districts where it was unexpected. Delegates chosen in other States handicapped by unit rules defiantly reject them under an inspiration born of popular enthusiasm for James G. Blaine. I hope I have made myself understood.

Senator Sessions immediately followed declaring that the foregoing remarks reflected the sentiments of nine tenths of the Republican party in his own Congressional XXXIII Congressional District, and that he should take pleasure in obeying the wishes at Chicago. Senator Bull also declared that the State Convention had no right to instruct District Delegates and he should vote at Chicago to represent the wishes of his constituency. It is believed that already twenty or more of the New York delegates have determined to vote for JAMES G. BLAINE on the first ballot.

The break in Pennsylvania has been quite as decided and emphatic. James McManes, the leader of the Philadelphia delegation, has declared publicly that he shall vote for Blaine, and of this the Philadelphia Press says

As far as Pennsylvania is concerned, this declaration sounds the death knell of the movement for the renomination of General Grant. Nine-tenths of the people of the State favor James G. Blaine, and with James McManes' example before them and the people's indignation behind them, it is doubtful if more than one-tenth of the delegates can be held to vote for General Grant.

It is believed that at least 28 or 30 of the Pennsylvania delegates have already determined to vote for Mr Blaine on the first ballot. No wonder that the Boston Herald's Washington correspondent telegraphs "Senator Cameron is more depressed by these developments than any one Grant men . . . He is not making any foolish predictions about General Grant's nomination just now."

CHALLENGING PUBLIC OPINION

In its championship of ex-Collector John B. Foster, the Commercial now demands that he be honored for his services in the counting out infamy, but it challenges any and every one who shall dare criticise him. The public may as well understand the sort of challenge that has been thrown out and they will know how to meet it. In returning to a State and city where his official conduct has been rebuked as scandalous Mr Foster has seen fit to send a defiant flourish of trumpets in advance. Through the Democratic Evening Post he flung out the charge of corruption against the Republican party of Maine, and the Bangor Commercial has not failed to echo the defiance of a loyal league? The Loyal League is an absolutely non-partisan association, composed of commissioned officers who served in the army and navy of the United States during the late rebellion, and whose only offence in the eyes of the Commercial appears to consist in the fact that their service was in the Union and not the Confederate forces. The proper credentials at the Cincinnati Convention would seem to be the actual service in the Confederate army or sympathy with it.

The Western Iron Association recently held a meeting and unanimously agreed to reduce the card rate of iron to two and one half cents. The iron masters state that it was an absolute necessity. The stores in Cleveland and Chicago are selling at that figure. The manufacturers at Pittsburgh Pa were thunderstruck when they heard that iron was selling in those cities at that price. The masters say that for the first time in many years the trade has got into the hands of speculators and that the operations of iron have caused the trouble.

Sitting Bull and his Indian followers find their land of refuge in the Canadian Dominion to be by no means so desirable a place as they imagined. Subsistence is poor and inadequate, the other Indian tribes are hostile, the British restrictions are very stringent, and altogether the Sioux exiles want to get back to the United States, and take their chances of hunting, and depredations, and government subsisting, etc. Unless they be allowed to return and be placed under strong guard somewhere away from the mountains, they will always be a source of danger to the civilized settlers of Montana and Dakota.

When Burdette, of the Burlington Hawkeye, secured in Rockland, a year or more ago, he received a sharp and quite unfavorable criticism in the Rockland Free Press. Burdette, good-humoredly turned round and heaped coals of fire upon both the city and the paper, and gave a glowing description of the place, advising every one to go there and live. To make the thing more emphatic, Burdette is going to Rockland to live this summer, with his family. He is bound to love his enemies.

Warner Ridge, a wealthy Quaker settlement near Rushville, Ind., has lately been greatly excited over a new religion which they call "white lightning." The excitement became so great that the schools were dismissed, and people left their farms and places of business to participate in the meetings. The leaders pretended to have supernatural power, and held the dead bodies of friends with attempts to revive them until burial was compelled by the authorities. One of the leaders named Pitts married a woman with the same faith, and their shameful treatment of a daughter of Pitts by a former wife so incensed his irreligious neighbors that they went to the house in a body, tarred and feathered Pitts, and threatened to hang him if the religious frenzy was not checked.

BLAINE AHEAD!

Of 600 delegates to Chicago thus far elected, the N. Y. Tribune, from the best information obtainable, assigns to Blaine 241; Grant 224, Sherman 91; Edmunds 31, Washburne 13.

CREDENTIALS TO THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

Hon John Hancock was a candidate for delegate-at-large from Texas to the Democratic Convention at Cincinnati, but was defeated because a member of the State Convention asked, amid applause, "Where was John Hancock when the loud artillery was heard roaring through this land, and when the South had resolved herself into a confederacy and called upon her sons to go to battle? He was not then standing within the ranks of the confederate army, he was not leading his regiment under that banner we all loved so well."

The above appears to be the spirit of the Bangor Commercial, which heads its notice of the election of Gen Hancock to the position of Commander for the United States of the Loyal Legion, a Doubtful Compliment. How can it be a doubtful compliment to a loyal man to be chosen President of a loyal league? The Loyal Legion is an absolutely non-partisan association, composed of commissioned officers who served in the army and navy of the United States during the late rebellion, and whose only offence in the eyes of the Commercial appears to consist in the fact that their service was in the Union and not Confederate forces. The proper credentials at the Cincinnati Convention would seem to be the actual service in the Confederate army or sympathy with it.

CHALLENGING PUBLIC OPINION

In its championship of ex-Collector John B. Foster, the Commercial now demands that he be honored for his services in the counting out infamy, but it challenges any and every one who shall dare criticise him. The public may as well understand the sort of challenge that has been thrown out and they will know how to meet it. In returning to a State and city where his official conduct has been rebuked as scandalous Mr Foster has seen fit to send a defiant flourish of trumpets in advance. Through the Democratic Evening Post he flung out the charge of corruption against the Republican party of Maine, and the Bangor Commercial has not failed to echo the defiance of a loyal league? The Loyal League is an absolutely non-partisan association, composed of commissioned officers who served in the army and navy of the United States during the late rebellion, and whose only offence in the eyes of the Commercial appears to consist in the fact that their service was in the Union and not Confederate forces. The proper credentials at the Cincinnati Convention would seem to be the actual service in the Confederate army or sympathy with it.

The case of Curtin vs. Yocum, 20th District Pennsylvania was taken up. The usual resolution declares the election void and void, and the minority resolution for Yocum, the sitting member, is entitled to the seat.

AN ENTIRE VILLAGE DESTROYED BY A GAS EXPLOSION.

Large Destruction of Oil Property.

BRADFORD, Pa., May 9. This afternoon a gas explosion occurred in a stove in the house of Justice Clark at Rixford, a town eleven miles southeast of Bradford and all fire in a building. All the buildings adjoining being light frame structures, the fire spread rapidly and before its fury was spent buildings were destroyed. This embraces the principal hotels, stores and business houses, including the Kendall and Ellered Railroad depot. The fire also burned the Pump station united the lines. A tank containing 7000 barrels of oil was burned and an iron tank containing 25,000 barrels of oil is now in flames. A short distance down the valley are located one other tank of 23,000 barrels owned by the Union lines and 2 others of similar dimensions belonging to the Windewater Pipe line. These three tanks are all full and it is thought cannot escape destruction. A large force of men are building dams to check the burning oil from flowing down the valley, should the tank now on fire boil over. There were insured in and round Rixford 40 derricks which were consumed.

WASHINGTON.

The Sugar Bill—An Important Measure — Mr. Frye's Proposition.

The sugar bill which the Ways and Means Committee agreed to report to the House, it is understood, is not considered by the majority as the best measure which could have been adopted, but inasmuch as any system of ad valorem duty was made unobtainable the committee decided to report to the House without recommendation for the purpose of bringing the subject directly before the House. At the meeting of the committee to-day several propositions for an ad valorem tariff was presented, but all voted down as impracticable.

An amendment proposed Tuesday by Mr. Frye was renewed to-day by Mr. Carlisle and failed by one vote of a majority. This measure Mr. Carlisle gave notice he should move as a substature for the Tucker bill when the subject came before the House.

The Frye bill proposes a uniform tariff of 2 cents per pound on all raw sugars up to No. 13, which is a dividing line between refining and grocery qualities; $3.25 cents from No. 13 to 16; $2.50 cents from 16 to 20; and $2.25 cents above 20; melado is reduced with $1.50 cents and molasses to 5 cts per gallon. Mr. Frye's bill reduces the duties about 15 per cent, equal to $6,000,000 which he claims is in harmony with the prevailing sentiment for the reduction of cost of food staples.

Invasion of Indian Territory.

WASHINGTON, May 8. The Secretary of the Interior received advices from Wichita, dated May 7, confirming the reported invasion of the Indian Territory by a number of white settlers under the lead of Captain Paine. This depredation was at once reported to the War Department and necessary orders issued to-day to the officers in command of troops in that vicinity, instructing them to drive out all raiders. In reply to inquiries on the subject Secretary Ramsey said he did not apprehend any trouble with the invaders, and that after they were once compelled to quit the Territory, they would not attempt to return.

The New Tariff Bill to be Reported.

WASHINGTON, May 8. The ways and means committee have perfected a tariff bill. Additional changes to-day are as follows: Wood pulp, duty reduced to 10 per cent.; salt is stricken from the bill entirely, the duty upon it therefore remains as at present; the subject of sugar is put into a separate bill, the provisions of Tucker's bill being agreed to without change as to rate of duty. The committee agreed upon Tucker's tariff bill this morning and ordered it favorably reported to the House, that portion relating to sugar was agreed to as a separate measure, and will also be favorably reported to the House in a separate bill.

About 250 operatives of the Valleyfield Cotton Co's mills have returned to work and the strike is at an end. Eleven of the ringleaders have gone to the States.

ILLINOIS ANTI-GRANT!

The Decisive Chicago Primaries!

GRANT HEAVILY BEATEN!

The Friends of Blaine and Washburne Overwhelmingly Defeat Grant's the Vital Contest for Cook County.

CHICAGO, May 8. The Republican primaries in this city to-day, resulted in giving Washburne 83, Grant 68, and Blaine 25 delegates to the Cook County Convention. Returns from the out lying districts will not alter the complexion of the result. Evanston goes anti-Grant.

Later—More Returns Confirm the Grant Defeat.

Returns from the Republican primaries in the ten outside towns in Cook county give Grant 11; Washburne 10; Blaine four delegates, making the total, Washburne 73; Grant 69; Blaine 29. The towns still to be heard from send 21 delegates, of which the Grant men claim less than 20 per cent. and if they gained them all the result would not be changed.

A Sharp Contest.

For the five hours the polls were open Saturday the fight was hot and all political devices practised at primary elections were used by both parties to win. The vote was so large in some wards as to excite surprise. There were great crowds around all the polling places but no collisions or disturbances occurred.

A Square Anti-Third-Term Victory.

The contest was a square one between Grant and anti-Grant, the friends of Blaine and Washburne working together. Grant carried 3 Republican, 2 Democratic, and 3 doubtful wards; the anti-Grant party carried 4 Republican, 3 Democratic, and 3 doubtful wards.

CHICAGO—midnight, May 9. Returns not yet all in from the outside towns in this county. The latest figures give Washburne 77 delegates; Grant 47; Blaine 31, to the Cook County Convention.

The Significance of It.

[NOTE. The importance of the above can hardly be overrated. Cook County will send some ninety delegates to the State Convention May 19, and will probably control its action. The caucuses reported above have decided that Cook County will send anti-Grant delegates, which is likely to carry General Grant's own State against him. This has been done in spite of the resort to extreme measures by the third-term managers, Senator Logan having hastened to Chicago and caused the primaries to be called at three days' notice, to gain advantage. The defeat of Logan and Grant in Chicago and its environs is signs and decisive.—ED. WHIG.]

PAY OF DEPUTY MARSHALS.

Danger of an Extra Session of Congress.

BOSTON, May 8. The Journal's Washington special says that Bayard's bill regulating the pay and appointment of special deputy marshals was referred to the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, a meeting of which was called to-day. No quorum appeared and the meeting was adjourned until next Wednesday. It is asserted that if Congress adjourns without making provision for the payment of deputy marshals the President will at once issue his proclamation convening an extra session.

POLITICAL.

Ohio for Tilden.

BOSTON, May 8. A Washington special to the Journal says: The Thurmanites admit that their state is broken in Ohio, and although the endorsement of the convention is for Thurman, the delegates are really for Tilden. Speaker Randall does not hesitate to state to his friends that Tilden is definitely in the field as a candidate, and Speaker Randall ought to know it. He certainly is working hard for his success."

Mrs. Barton is an indefatigable worker in the temperance cause, a woman of rare ability and eloquence.

LECTURE AT NOROMBEGA. This evening Mr. Stoddard will deliver the third lecture in his series, the topic being "St. Petersburg." The views of the Winter Palace, the scene of the late attempt of the Nihilists to destroy the life of the Czar, will be of particular interest at this time. They will be assisted by Mrs. Waggatt, contralto; Mr. Moody, basso and perhaps other soloists, with Mr. Davenport as organist. The price of admission will be twenty-five cents to all parts of the house, and tickets may be obtained of the place designated in the advertisement elsewhere.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN. People will never weary of the stage presentations of this fascinating story that contributed so largely to prepare the popular mind for the abolition of slavery. As rendered on Saturday evening, at Norombega Hall, by the Hyers Sisters combination, it received many novel interpretations, among them the plantation scenes, bringing in the plaintive and wild melody peculiar to the negro race. While the actors were all quite clever, we may especially mention Sam Lucas, who seemed to embody into action the author's idea of the pious but firm Uncle Tom. Miss Louisa C. Hyer, as the impressible "Topsy," won great applause. Edwin Wright, in the dual and very opposite characters of "Phineas Fletcher" and "Simon Legree," G. W. Hill, as "Marks," and J. Alfred Smith, a well known actor, as "St. Clair," Lizzie Duroy as "Aunt Ophelia," little Lottie Burke, as "Eva," all made capital hits, rendering their parts in a most satisfactory manner. The company gave a sacred concert at Norombega Hall, last evening, and presented some very pleasing selections of jubilee music.

BANGOR REFORM CLUB. AMUSEMENTS.

Music.

The sale of seats for Lotta's engagement will commence at O. Bugbee & Co's. this morning, and there is every indication of an immense demand for desirable seats. "Musette," the play announced for the occasion, will be given with Abbey's Park Theatre company in support, all the music, and in the same complete manner as in New York and Boston.

Haverly's Minstrels.

Haverly's troupe of Genuine Colored Minstrels will appear in Norombega Hall on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, and also in a matinee on Saturday afternoon. With this party is Wallace King, the tenor, Sohee Bros. banjoists and Tom McIntosh (advertised as having the "largest mouth in the country") and a large company of vocalists, comedians and musicians. We understand that this will be the only appearance in Bangor this season of any of Mr. Haverly's attractions. Of a recent appearance in Philadelphia, the Times says:

"A packed house greeted the openidg performance of Haverly's Genuine Colored Minstrels at the Academy of Music last night. People had to be turned away long before the curtain rose. Every box was filled, and in one of them sat ex-Governor Hartranft, the Hon. George H. Boker, and other distinguished officials. Not since the Mapleson Opera Company appeared last winter, perhaps has there been such an audience as that which turned out last night. When the curtain was rung up on the first scene, the jubilee chorus was discovered on the front part of the stage, which the end men and others to set off the picture, all singing plantation airs. The scene was heightened by the play of calcium lights, producing a brilliant effect. From beginning to end the audience was almost in a continuous roar. There were exceptional instances, such as when the quartet came to sing, or a tenor appeared, or a banjoist solo was rendered. The comedians were excessively funny. The performance lasted until nearly eleven o'clock, closing with a jubilee chorus, all the performers appearing on the stage, during which the calcium lights were again brought into requisition, presenting a dazzling spectacle as the curtain fell, and holding the audience until the last minute."

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

The Trial of Sarah Estes in the Police Court.

The Police Court was crowded Saturday by those interested in the trial of Sarah Estes, of Brewer, who is charged with attempting to burn the house of Mr. Oscar Howard on the evening of April 25th. Hon. L. A. Barker and R. W. Rogers, Esq., of Belfast, appeared for the respondent and County Attorney Mace for the government. The following is a synopsis of the testimony:

C. M. Howard testified—I am an insurance agent. I insured the house of Oscar Howard, in Nov. 1875, the policy to expire Nov. 1880, for $2,500; also $300 on the furniture. The house was partially burned the 25th of April. After the fire I had the premises examined by two master builders, Messrs. Cutter & Wiggin, who estimated the damages at $75.30. I examined the building myself the next day. The house was vacant. The fire occurred in the basement which is on a level with the ground. An entrance had been gained by prying several holes in a panel in the door in the rear of the house, so that they could go through and unfasten the bolts. The door opened into the basement where the fire occurred, and in the corner of the room I found some shavings partially burned. The side and top of the room was burned almost to a coal. Up stairs in the closet I also found some shavings that had been partially burned. The policy was payable to Oscar S. Howard as far as I know; no one has ever notified me that the house was mortgaged.

Freeman Williams, a member of the fire department, testified—I think the fire occurred about 10:30 P. M., Sunday. I was the first fireman there. It did not take but a few minutes to extinguish the flames. I found the door had been bored through with an auger, so that I could insert my arm—think the door was fastened. I could smell kerosene oil when I broke the window in order to get water on the fire. When I entered the building saw a pile of shavings in the corner, partially burned.

Benj. E. Sargent testified—I was in the next house the evening of the fire and at about half past ten a lady up stairs cried out that the house was on fire. I went to the door and saw that fire was at Howard's house and gave the alarm. When I first looked out the fire was very light, but the flames died down in a minute or two. The flames must have been caused by something very light burning.

Miss Amy Turner testified—I live next to the Howard house. At about 10:30 P. M., on the night in question I was in bed in the front part of my house, when I heard a cry of fire. I opened my window and saw a stout woman coming up the lane towards Centre street on the northerly side of my house. There is a passage way from the rear of Howard's house leading into this lane. This woman had on a waterproof with a cape, a light dress and wore her hat down over her eyes. I took particular notice of this woman, as she was within about fifteen feet. She was walking slowly and I saw that she wore her hair in a pug. I said to her "Run, run or I'll shoot you" and she ran. A spot of kerosene and stopper were found in our barn on the lower part of the lane.

Mrs. Leach, of Brewer, testified—Sarah Estes called on me at about seven o'clock the next morning after the fire and said Mr. Howard's house had been set on fire. She said she got her information from Mr. Rich, as she was going after some soap. After my husband went out she asked if I could smell kerosene on her clothes. She said she had bathed her feet in kerosene the night before. I could not smell the kerosene on her. Tuesday afternoon she was in again and said to me that she hoped they would not charge the crime to her, after I told her that Marshal Reed was looking after the prisoner, for she could not prove her innocence as she was alone that night. Friday or Saturday before the fire she called to my house and wanted to borrow an auger. She said she was going to make a flower stand. I told her to bring the pieces in and my husband would make the holes further. She did not bring the pieces in until Tuesday after the fire and then said she was in no hurry for them. She told me that Mrs. Howard was going to give her some plants.

Wooster Rich, of Bangor, testified—I saw Sarah Estes Monday morning after the fire about seven o'clock near a store in Brewer not far from the bridge. She was going towards her home. I overtook and talked with her, telling her that some one set Mr. Howard's house on fire the night before. She remarked: "Is that so; that is too bad." I think she had a package of something in her hand.

Geo. M. Partington, of Brewer, testified—The auger presented in Court belongs to me. It was borrowed by Sarah Estes before the fire. She borrowed it twice before the fire. The second time was the Saturday night previous to the fire. I had not used the auger for two or three weeks. The auger was returned Monday morning after the fire. There might have been several persons in the store when she called Saturday, and she made no attempt at secrecy.

At this point the hearing adjourned until afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The first witness called at the afternoon session was Marshal Reed, who testified—My attention was called to the attempt to burn this house on the night of the fire. I arrived at the place some fifteen minutes after the alarm. When I reached the house some of the firemen were entering the basement and I saw the auger holes in the inside door. I had the panel taken out the following Monday morning.

Here the auger was presented again and Marshal Reed pointed out the different ways in which the auger compared with the holes in the door. The auger fitted the holes perfectly and the tracks of a dull or jagged place on the sharp part of the auger were discernible on the panel of the door.

Marshal Reed then said: I think this bit or auger made the holes in the door. I sent Mr. Weymouth to Brewer last Monday after the auger. A waterproof and dress were then introduced, which Marshal Reed said he obtained from Sarah Estes a week after the fire. She was in my office that day. In reply to my question said she did not come to Bangor on the evening of April 25th. I then asked if she had an old waterproof and cape and she said she had, but denied that she had any light calico dress.

In reply to my question as to where she obtained the auger she described the store, but said she did not know the name of the proprietor. Officer Weymouth was then sent after the auger, which he obtained. After dinner Officer Weymouth went to Brewer with Miss Estes and returned with the waterproof and dress. She then admitted to me that the articles belonged to her. These things had a strong odor of kerosene, especially the dress. The hat she had on turned down in front and up behind and she stated that was all the hat she had. Before the clothes came I asked her if she had any kerosene on her clothes and she replied that she did not, or, at least, if she had she did not know it. Afterwards she said she might have been using a lamp. When I asked her if she had used any kerosene on her limbs she replied that she had not, but subsequently admitted that she had used it on her feet. She was not under arrest at the time. I went to the barn and saw the spot of kerosene and got the paper stopper made of a piece of wrapping paper from E. C. Nichols & Co's.

Officer Weymouth testified—I understood her to say that she had no light dress.

This closed the evidence for the Government and Mr. Barker made a motion to dismiss the case, but His Honor Judge Goodenow declined to entertain the motion. The defense then called on Miss Estes to testify.

THE DEFENSE.

Miss Sarah Estes testified—I am a single lady between forty and fifty years old. Have been a little deaf for some sixteen or seventeen years. Sometimes I have to ask a question several times. I came here from Troy some twenty years ago. Have been a cost maker since then. Have worked for Mr. Jones, Mr. Wheelwright and a number of others. This spring I have been living in Brewer over Mr. Holmes' tin shop, where I boarded myself. When I work here I bring my dinner with me. I have never been arrested or questioned about any acts of my life before this. I wanted to make a shelf for some plants was the reason why I borrowed the auger. This was Saturday night before the fire, but I was unable to use it. I carried it back Monday morning and asked the man to show me how to use it. That night I took it home and tried again, but could not use it, so I carried the pieces into Mr. Leach's and got him to do the work for me. I did not come from Brewer to this city between Saturday night and Monday morning. I know nothing about the fire whatever. I was not the person seen in the lane that night. I have had the waterproof for years. When Marshal Reed asked me about the waterproof and dress I told him that I had them; spoke as quickly as possible. I told him that I did not use kerosene on my limbs, but said I used it on my feet. I told him that I was not in Bangor Sunday. I am troubled with tender feet and have used kerosene on them. Sometimes I have worn the waterproof as a dress and trimmed my lamp and bathed my feet with it on. I learned from Mr. Rich an attempt had been made to burn Mr. Howard's house. After this I went into Mrs. Leach's and told her about it. I don't remember of asking her if she could smell kerosene. Tuesday afternoon I again went into Mrs. Leach's and met Mrs. Howard there. One of the ladies first remarked that they should not want to be charged with the crime and I said neither would I, for I live alone and it would be hard for me to prove my innocence. Sunday evening of the fire I was at home all the time. I wrote a letter and read some.

BOUND OVER.

At the close of this testimony Mr. Barker and County Attorney Mace argued the case very briefly, after which Judge Goodenow said he considered there was sufficient cause to hold the respondent until the August term, and that he should require $5,000 bail, which was furnished by her friends.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

A Boston Merchant Drugged and Robbed—He is Shipped to Portland and Found in an Alley at Gorham's Corner.

On Monday evening last one of the leading wholesale merchants in Boston, a gentleman of large means and well known on change, who owns an elegant establishments at the Hub, and who rejoices in an interesting family, went into a popular billiard room on, or near School street in that city with a few intimate friends, to play a game of billiards. During the course of the game the party had several glasses of lager and after about an hour or so spent in pushing the bottle, the gentleman decided to pay his share of the games and go home. He had partaken of, perhaps, three glasses of lager, had drunk nothing else of a spirituous nature during the day, and was known to be particularly abstemious in this regard. In fact it was a rare thing for him to go into a billiard room anyway, for he is quite devoted to his family. He stepped up to the counter to pay his bill, and took the money from a small purse he carried in his trowsers pockets, handed it to the proprietor and received his change. He then started to go out of the room and remembered something more.

Wednesday morning an Irish woman, who resides in Portland, went to a neighbor and told him there was a very well dressed gentleman in her tenement who was either insane or drugged and she didn't know what to do about him. The neighbor happened to be employed by one of the leading firms, and the Portland merchant accompanied the Irishman to the woman's house. Up in the attic of a small house, on a dirty coarse straw mattress, and covered with a ragged quilt, lay the stranger, a man about 40 years of age, and evidently a person of refinement and cultura. His clothes were nicely cut, his soiled linen of fine quality, and he wore a valuable gold watch and heavy chain. The woman said he came to the house about 9 o'clock Tuesday night accompanied by another man, also well dressed. The strangers appeared to have both had more than was good for them and her lodger while well dressed, as could be seen, singularly enough wore no coat. As she had several customers at that time she did not notice when the coatless man's companion left.

The Portland merchant took the stranger home, had a bath given to him, clean linen put upon him and called a physician. The latter said at once the man displayed the signs of drug poisoning but was evidently coming out of it all right. In the afternoon the stranger had sufficiently recovered to give his name and residence, and requested a telegram be sent to his family, saying he was all right. The Portland merchant had a feeling at first that the stranger had been on a spree and that while on the same he had brought up in Portland, but when the stranger was able to give his name—a well known one—and stated that on the day he went into the billiard room in Boston he had in his inside pocket book—one of the long ones carried by business men—about $500 in bank bills, some bonds to quite an amount—several thousand dollars. He has purchased that morning, and valuable papers, and that this pocket book was in the coat he had lost, it was evident he had been the victim of a well planned game. While he was playing billiards and while the beer was being brought him, somebody must have watched his chance and slipped the drug in his beer mug. It could not have been any one of his companions, however, as they were all men of high standing. It could not have been any of the billiard room people because the saloon is one of the most respectable in Boston.

It must have been one of a gang who had dogged him since he bought the bonds in the morning waiting their chance to find a way to get at him. The drug evidently operated just as he was leaving the saloon, and favored the scoundrels more than they had anticipated. They probably thought he would become unconscious in the saloon and then, under cover of assisting him they could pick his pocket. Whether they robbed him of his coat in Boston, taking the money with it, and whether he wandered in a stupified state to the depot semi-crazy, took the cars to Portland, or whether one of them brought him to Portland, and who the man who went to the Irish woman's with him was, remains a mystery. It is very singular they should not have touched the gold watch and chain. Whether that was because the chain bore a Masonic charm or not is a question, but if that was the reason one would think they would then have refrained from any robbery.

The stranger left for home Thursday night. The affair will be thoroughly investigated and the matter placed in the hands of Boston's well known detective.
